

WP 4. Interviews – Life course studies (INCC, VUB, UCL, ULG).

In order to answer the two main research questions ( impact & processes, and public policies), interviews with the concerned population, victims and offenders, will be a key source of information. The Life Course Studies approach (in a “Pathway perspective”) will focus attention on the underlying dynamics of intimate partner violence. This dynamic approach should also provide the opportunity to understand the effects (intentional or not) of public strategies from the point of view of the main publics concerned. This will be done mainly through interviews with victims and offenders.
